

Introduction

Jack Mitchell, spiritual teacher and writer, has spent over 25 years helping ordinary people in their quest for healing and wholeness. He has traveled extensively, spent some time in a monastery, and studied theology, psychology, and world religions.

Jack offers "Healing and Wholeness" seminars on the importance of dreams, meditative prayer, healing, and deliverance. He shares his message and vision through radio, television, and personal appearances.

He encourages people of every faith tradition to learn to practice the awareness of the presence of God, and to respond to His invitation to love.

Jack resides in New Hampshire, near Mt. Monadnock. His first book "God Draws Straight with Crooked Lines" is due out in 2009.

Natalia Klauer shares the powerful and compelling story of her early life spent in a series of Nazi slave labor camps in WWII Germany. Among other things, Natalia endured famine, the deaths of family members, and the "fire-bombing" of Dresden in 1945. With the surviving members of her family, she came to America as a "displaced person" in 1950. Natalia tells her story of hope, survival, and spiritual growth in the context of the horrors of war and its aftermath.

Please welcome Jack Mitchell and Natalia Klauer.
